

IDS114: Foundations of Academic Inquiry

New course name fall 2021

FYE 111: First Year Experience Seminar

Undeclared Major? Undecided About Your Career Path?

Enroll in IDS114

This course prepares students for success in college and beyond. Students will explore academic and career options, set informed academic and career goals, and begin to develop essential skills such as information literacy, critical thinking, and effective communication through civil discourse. Students will also develop a personalized academic plan and learn academic behaviors and study strategies associated with success.

What is this course?

In IDS114 (FYE 111) students will learn to advocate for themselves, to utilize information literacy, critical and creative thinking skills for problem-solving, and to enhance their technological literacy while immersed in a culture of diversity and inclusion. In addition, students will explore various career paths, and build individualized academic and career plans, including a financial component. These core skills teach students how to define and apply college success and resilience strategies. The emphasis is to prepare students for success in their personal, academic, and professional lives.

IDS 114:

- Required in the General Studies program and counts as three (3) open elective credits.
- Recommended for students who place into developmental math or English.
- Used as an open elective for Liberal Arts and Sciences (LAS) students.

IDS114 Benefits:

- Form strong peer support systems.
- Become familiar with campus resources.
- Receive one-on-one support from your instructor.
- Develop the skills that will help you succeed academically.
- Make an individualized career, academic and financial plan for college.
